AUSTRIANS SUFFER CRUSHING DEFEAT ON ITALIAN FRONT

Swift Advance Of Allies Penetrates Fifteen Miles In Depth

RESISTANCE WEAK

25,000 Prisoners And 200 Guns Captured In Three Days

HOPE FOR DECISION

Italians Throw In Fresh Forces To Make Victory Final

(French Wireless)

Lyons, October 30, 10 p.m.—In Italy the Allies' offensive is developing with full success. The Italian cavalry supported by motor machine-guns is pursuing the Austrians. The Allies' advance exceeds twenty-five kilometers. They have taken over 25,000 prisoners and captured about 200 guns. Fresh Italian forces in considerable numbers have entered into the action and it is hoped to obtain important results as the battle is taking on all the character of a war of movement.

(American Wireless To Reuter)

Washington, October 30.—(Received at French Wireless Station).—News from the Italian front says that the British have reached the line of Bonelo and Damian, capturing 6,000 prisoners.

A despatch to the Italian Embassy today told of the capture and liberation of more than a hundred villages in the victorious advance against the Austrians. The Allies have reached the river Livenza. The Austrian Army Corps' left wing has been entirely destroyed, leaving behind much war material and several hundred guns.

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, October 29.—Reuter's agency learns that the British and Italian armies are attacking on a front of twenty-five miles and are opposed by forty-five Austrian divisions, comprising 600,000 troops. The Allies have crossed the Piave on the whole front from the Treviso-Orderzo railway to Valdobbiadene and made an average advance of over four miles. The Italian command considers the battle is going splendidly.

All objectives have been gained.

Enemy Is Weakening

An official despatch from headquarters in Italy reports:

The resistance of the enemy is weakening considerably. Our cavalry and infantry have forced the passage of Monticano and have taken several hundred prisoners.

Reuter's correspondent at Italian headquarters reports:

Conegliano has been taken and the whole line has advanced between that important railway and road center and Valdobbiadene. 4,000 prisoners taken yesterday have been brought across the river but a large number still remain on the left bank.

Retreat Is Hard Pressed

The official communique issued this evening reports:

Our 8th and 12th Armies attacked the enemy frontally, and our 10th Army threatened his flank. The enemy has abandoned his positions on the heights on the left bank of the Piave and is retreating hard-pressed. We liberated numerous villages. Our parties closely followed up the enemy, who blew up the bridges on the Monticano. We entered Conegliano.

Northward, on the right of the Piave, we co-operated with the troops on the left bank and passed, after a lively and bitter struggle, beyond the Calcino torrent. Bitter fighting continues in the region of the Grappa.

We have taken thousands of prisoners and captured over 150 guns, many of which are already in action against the enemy.

London, October 30.—(By wireless). An Austrian official communique reports:

On the battlefront we evacuated the most strongly attacked positions.

NEW NAVY Y.M.C.A. TO BE OPENED HERE

Spacious Quarters Donated By Mr. Hardoon; Campaign For $300,000 Starts Soon

With the announcement of a forthcoming campaign for $300,000 in China for the Y.M.C.A. Knights of Columbus, Jewish Welfare Association, Salvation Army and kindred organisations working with American troops, comes the news that the local Young Men's Christian Association will open headquarters for enlisted men, in the Hardoon Building, 24 Nanking Road.

The new quarters will take the place of the Navy Y.M.C.A., on Broadway, and will be equipped with every facility to cater to the wants of the soldiers and sailors.

The move has been made possible through the generosity of Mr. S. A. Hardoon, who allows the Association the use of a large room on the ground floor, four rooms and two baths on the second and four large rooms on the top floor. On the ground floor will be maintained a reading room, library and game room. Two pool tables will be erected today, writing tables will be installed and the Association is to supply writing materials. A player-piano and victrola will also be included in the equipment of the new quarters.

Sleeping accommodations are to be provided for 100 men, a restaurant and canteen will furnish meals, cigars and cigarettes at cost price and everything possible will be done for the entertainment of enlisted men.

Mr. Fred C. Rumsey, sent here from Bremerton navy yard, Seattle, by the National Y.M.C.A. Committee, is to have full charge of the Navy Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Rumsey was engaged in general mercantile business until war was declared and then he enlisted in the Y.M.C.A. He has been a successful worker at the biggest navy yard in the United States and comes here thoroughly fitted to take up the work with American sailors and soldiers. He brings a wealth of athletic equipment and will promote sports among the enlisted men. Basketball, indoor baseball, volleyball, boxing and wrestling tournaments are to be arranged for the sailors and already Mr. Rumsey has two crack basketball teams made up of sailors on the U.S.S. Villalobos practicing daily at the Chinese Y.M.C.A.

The quarters to be opened in a few days will be only temporary and it is expected, as a result of China's activity in the campaign soon to start, that a $100,000 Navy Y.M.C.A. will be built here in the Spring.

The drive for funds will extend throughout China. Shanghai will be asked to contribute $100,000, the amount to be divided between the Y.M.C.A., Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army, Y.W.C.A., National Catholic War Council, Jewish Welfare Board, War Camp Community Service and American Library Association. The New York committee hopes to raise U.S.$170,500,000 in the week, November 11 to 18.

Dr. P. S. Reinsch, American Minister to China, heads a strong central committee composed of influential Chinese and foreigners at Peking. The legation has wired all American Consuls urging them to form committees and direct local campaigns.

The Shanghai committee will be announced tomorrow. It will be composed of Chinese and foreigners of all creeds.

German Counter-Attack Fails To Slow Up French; New Attack Is Launched

Troops Enter Guise In Spite Of Enemy's Efforts To Make Stand; Local Offensive Begun East Of Serre

(French Wireless)

Lyons, October 30, 10 p.m.—It is in vain that the Germans try to react by violent counter-attacks. Everywhere these have failed. Their attempt to free Guise has provoked an energetic reply from the French troops, who have occupied part of the town.

The 5th Army on Tuesday again took the offensive on a front of thirteen kilometers between St. Quentin-le-Petit and Herpy, westward of Chateau-Porcien, and has pushed forward to the outskirts of Hill 121 and driven back the enemy beyond the Recouvrance-St. Fergeux road. Their advance reached a depth of three kilometers east of the signal of Recouvrance.

(American Wireless To Reuter)

Paris, October 30.—The French communique says: We pushed our advance as far as the approaches of the Oise, capturing strong points northwest of Guise.

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Paris, October 29.—The German retreat which began on Sunday morning before the 1st and 10th French Armies on a front of sixteen miles, suddenly came to a stop and the enemy counter-attacked with great vigor, especially in the neighborhood of Guise. Possibly the intention of the enemy is to clear away as much war material as possible from his back areas but more likely confusion exists among the German general staff when Germany alone is facing the victorious Entente armies. With the line of the Serre turned, with the main bastion of Crecy-sur-Serre captured, the Hunding Stellung broken and the Aisne outflanked, the inevitable necessity is that the enemy must withdraw from these positions.

In a big French attack south of Geraincourt, 120 bombing machines, with eighty battle planes, dropped thirty-three tons of bombs on convoys, dumps and hutments.

The official communique issued this evening reports:

Between the Oise and the Serre there have been lively artillery actions, notably in the region of Crecy-sur-Serre.

New Attack Begun

The 5th Army attacked westward of Chateau-Porcien on a front of twelve kilometers between St. Quentin-le-Petit and Herpy. The French fought with magnificent dash. The enemy were ordered to hold their positions at all costs and resisted with great desperation. On

BIG AMERICAN GUNS SHATTER RAILWAYS

Cannon More Formidable Than 'Big Berthas' Shell Communications Far Behind Line

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, October 29.—Reuter's correspondent at American headquarters reports today:

Long range guns of big caliber have begun shelling in the direction of the Longuyon-Montmedy-Sedan and Mezieres railway, which is a vital communication upon which the enemy has depended for the quick transportation of all troops supplies, etc., from one portion of the guns to another. The caliber of the guns cannot be stated but they are more formidable than the Big Berthas that bombarded Paris.

(American Wireless To Reuter)

Washington, October 30.—(Received at French Wireless Station).—Press despatches received today from the sector northwest of Verdun said that big American guns were crashing down on the main-line railroad in the region of Conflans. They also shelled large enemy troop stations in the neighborhood of Mangiennes. At intervals big guns shelled the territory around Spincourt and Baroncourt, important railroad junctions.

ALLIED RELIEF WORKERS CONCENTRATE ON SIBERIA

Red Cross Bodies Here Turning Out Approved Supplies For Expeditionary Forces

A succinct and enlightening record of what Allied Red Cross workers here are doing in the way of Siberian relief and assurance that the articles being manufactured and shipped are of definitely approved character are contained in a report issued by Mrs. Florence Ayscough, honorary secretary of the newly organised Allied War Relief Association of Shanghai.

"Feeling that the public will like to know definitely what is being done in Shanghai," Mrs. Ayscough's report states, "my Committee instructs that I shall report as follows: The various Allied organisations which have associated themselves in war relief are all working on definite requisitions from Siberia, and are forwarding nothing which has not been approved by the authorities in the north.

"American Red Cross, Central Committee and Shanghai Chapter:

"All requisitions come direct from Vladivostok.

"B.W.W.A.: The Colonels of the British regiments have asked for 1,500 sweaters, long sleeved, to pull over the head; 1,500 pairs of socks and 1,500 mufflers. The socks have been sent by the Association. As to the mufflers, 790 made from blanketing specially woven by the Ewo mills or a model chosen from among four samples sent north a fortnight ago are going forward today, a gift from the Shanghai Comforts Fun. Besides these a quantity of woolen scarves have gone and are going. Fifty are a gift from the French Red Cross.

"The sweaters are extremely difficult to procure, several hundred [illegible] others are being made in the meanwhile the Commanding officers are being asked if a padded waistcoat (sample sent) which could be procured easily and quickly can be used as a substitute. Three Czech officers who have just arrived in Shanghai, when asked what their requirements were, placed sweaters first on the list.

"Sometime ago the officer commanding the Czech forces sent pat-

VIENNA AND BERLIN SEND NEW APPEAL FOR PEACE TO U.S.

Two More Notes Received In Washington From Central Powers

AUSTRIA HUMBLE

Emphasises Complete Concessions To Wilson And Great Desire For Peace

GERMANS EXPLAIN

Details Submitted To Show Kaiser Has Been Shorn Of Power

(American Wireless To Reuter)

Washington, October 30.—(Received at French Wireless Station).—Another note from Germany has reached Washington supplementing the last brief communication which said that Germany awaited the terms of an armistice. This note gives details of the government changes in Germany as evidence that the Kaiser has been deprived of all power to make war and negotiate peace. It further states that the actual power and responsibility of the German government have been transferred.

THE AUSTRIAN NOTE

(French Wireless)

Lyons, October 30.—Count Andrassy has sent to Mr. Lansing a new note which he has communicated to the Allied governments, asking President Wilson to support it.

Count Andrassy declares that measures have been taken, in conformity with the principles of President Wilson, by which the peoples of Austria-Hungary can decide their future organisation and regulate it at their own free will. He lays stress upon the desire for peace animating the Emperor Karl and all the peoples of Austria-Hungary and insists to the American Secretary of State that an immediate armistice ought to be concluded on all the fronts of Austria-Hungary to permit the opening of peace negotiations to follow.

Outbreak In Budapest

Late despatches from Berne announce that very serious trouble occurred in Budapest on Sunday evening and all day on Monday.

On Sunday night a meeting of Count Karolyi's supporters took place which decided to send a deputation to Posen to invite Archduke Joseph, called Karolyi, to be President of the Council.

The Vossische Zeitung says that a mob broke through several cordons of troops but then met with further strong resistance from rifle and machine-gun fire and the bayonet. Many persons were killed and wounded. Fighting went on all night. On Monday the mob demonstrated before the Karolyi Club. The demonstrators were dispersed by the police. As the result of these riots the Governor has forbidden all demonstrations and meetings.

Disturbances In Berlin

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, October 29.—Apparently big disturbances occurred in Berlin on Sunday. There are no official details but an official statement admits that five Independent Socialist meetings were suppressed "without difficulty." The food situation in Vienna is growing worse.

There has been a heavy run on the Vienna Savings Banks.

Fifteen hundred deaths from influenza occurred in Vienna during the week ending the 19th.

The Austrian reply is considered equivalent to a complete surrender, dealing a fatal blow to the position of Germany and greatly expediting the inevitable end. Austria's home difficulties have been increased by a general rebellion and guerrilla warfare in Montenegro, which the Austro-Hungarian forces are evacuating hastily. It is reported that the rebels have captured Scutari.

The dramatic development in Vienna will enormously enhance the importance of the Allied conference.

which, by the irony of history, is meeting at Versailles, where the German Empire was proclaimed in 1870. It is suggested that the Allies' terms should be announced in the hall which was the scene of that proclamation.

End Of Austria, Paris Thinks

Paris, October 29.—Opinion in Paris is that the submission of the Emperor Charles means the break-up of the Empire of Austria-Hungary, which consists of a number of disaffected races, each preparing to quit the partnership. The Sovereign is deserted, the historic Triple Alliance smashed and the fate of the separate nationalities cannot be decided until a general peace is concluded.

Count Andrassy, the son of the statesman who signed the first Triple Alliance Treaty, now signs its death. Count Andrassy cannot pretend to speak in the name of the nationalities whose independence was admitted only when Germany surrendered her sword.

(American Wireless To Reuter)

Washington, October 30.—(Received at French Wireless Station).—A London telegram says that the Austrian reply to President Wilson is considered in many quarters as equivalent to complete surrender and as dealing a fatal blow to the position of Germany.

(American Wireless To Reuter)

Washington, October 30.—(Received at French Wireless Station).—Professor Thomas G. Masaryk, President of the Czech National Council, received a cablegram today announcing formally that a brigade of Rumanian infantry was in Servia assisting the Allied forces. One regiment is composed of Rumanians of Austria-Hungary who were taken prisoners by Russia in the early days of the war and turned over to Servia as prisoners. Rumanians of Austria-Hungary also have units under Allied command in France and Italy.

WILSON MAKES CLEAR HIS ECONOMIC POLICY

Would Heave Trade Weapons Used Against Individual Nations Only By Joint Action

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Washington, October 28.—In a letter to the Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate President Wilson has replied to the contentions of the Republican Party that a third of his points pronouncing in favor of the removal of economic barriers meant free trade. President Wilson explains that he did not mean to suggest any restriction upon internal economic policies but only that whatever tariff, high or low, any nation might deem necessary should be applied equally to all foreign nations. President Wilson declares that weapons of economic discipline and punishment should be left to the joint action of all nations for the purpose of punishing those who will not submit to a general program of justice and equality.

TOWN HALL THRONGED FOR TANK RECEPTION

Many Attend Function In Honor Of Chinese Campaigners By British Committee

The Town Hall assembly room, colorfully draped with the flags of Britain and China, formed the setting for an animated scene yesterday afternoon when over 500 Chinese and British residents, including many ladies, gathered for the reception tendered the Chinese workers in the Tank Week campaign by the British Committee.

The big drill floor was thickly set with tea tables and its capacity was comfortably taxed to accommodate the throng. The flag decoration about the walls was most artistically done and a temporary platform was swathed in bunting and trimmed with miniature tanks, while from either side, at the top of floral entwined staffs, the flag of the Republic and the banner of Great Britain snapped in an artificial breeze.

Selections by the Astor House orchestra and a program of Chinese acrobatics began after tea and light refreshments had been served. Mr. G. E. Browne sang "In Flanders' Fields"—the music to which is written by Mr. J. Deane Wells of Shanghai—and then Sir Everard Fraser, chairman of the China and Japan War Savings Association, made the presentation of three handsome engraved silver tablets to three Chinese who were prominent in the Tank Week campaign. Mr. C. M. Bain acted as master of ceremonies and there were present on the platform during the ceremony Dr. Hopkyns Rees, Mr. H. Phillips, Mr. T. Ibukiyama, Mr. E. C. Pearce, Sir Havilland de Sausmarez and Mr. E. F. Goodale.

The three Chinese selected by the Chinese Tank Committee to receive the mementos of the campaign were Mr. Chu Pao-san, chairman of the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce; Mr. Pan Ching-pao, compradore of Jardine, Matheson and Co., and Mr. Li Po-pao, chairman of the Piece Goods Guild. Mr. Chang Nieh-yuh, foreign secretary of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, was presented with a gold wrist watch in recognition of his valuable services in the Tank Week work.

In making the presentation Sir Everard spoke of the energy and patriotic spirit which their Chinese colleagues had displayed in obtaining some £119,100 in subscriptions to British National War Bonds and cited it as an indication of friendly co-operation between Chinese and British Allies. He reminded his British hearers that because the Allies at present have the upper hand it was not an indication that they might now relax their efforts in support of the war and pointed to the sacrifices being made in England as an example for Britons in the East to follow. He impressed upon both Britons and Chinese the necessity of shunning all traffic with the enemy now and after the war and closed with a further sincere appreciation of the work of the Chinese Tank Committee.

Mr. Chu Pao-san and Mr. Chang responded with appropriate remarks, deprecating their efforts in the Tank campaign and emphasising that it was not merely an honor but also a duty and privilege for the Chinese Allies to do their utmost in support of the cause for which all were standing.

The silver tablets presented bear the facsimile of a tank engraved thereon and are mounted on shields of black wood. Each has engraved on it in English and Chinese the inscription: "This tablet was presented by Sir Everard Fraser, K.C.M.G., chairman of the China and Japan War Savings Association, to Mr.—— in recognition of his valuable services in securing subscriptions to British National War Bonds during Chinese Tank Week, 1918."

A part of the decoration of the hall which aroused great interest was a huge map of the Western front, showing the territory from which the German armies have been hurled since attaining the height of their drive last July.

Obituary

Miss Dorothy May Jones

Word received here confirms the death through the torpedoing of the Leinster of Miss Dorothy May Jones, daughter of Mrs. R. H. R. Wade and stepdaughter of Mr. R. H. R. Wade, Commissioner of Customs.

Miss Jones was on holiday from France and was a passenger aboard the steamer bound for Ireland when the ship was sunk on October 10. Miss Jones was 27 years old and was well known and popular in Shanghai. She left for home shortly before the war began. A telegram received by her parents shortly after the torpedoing of the liner informed them that she had been on board and was among those missing.

You've got the key to independence, contentment, success, when you've learned to save consistently

Regularity

Be regular in your saving. Remember that when you leave $5 or $10 for credit on your savings account with this bank—it's just like making that much extra money.

It's the money you save that counts. If you can save $5, $10, or more every week or month your savings will grow in leaps and bounds.

Soon you'll have enough to make a profitable investment in a home, Liberty Bonds or other safe security.

That's when you'll fully appreciate how much it means to you to save regularly.

Thrift is the foundation of the welfare of every nation.

Thrifty people do not waste their time, ability and means on frivolous excesses that undermine health and character.

They live a frugal, sensible life, well within their income and are ready at all times to grasp opportunities for bettering their fortunes.

To be thrifty indicates to all who know you that you've got the good sense to save something for the future. They'll respect, admire you for it.

Your own and your country's welfare demand that you save more than ever before. We must save food, money; we must all utilize our time and effort to the best advantage. Waste must be cut out completely.

Never before in the history of the world has this been so clearly understood by everyone.

But understanding of our needs will do no good unless we resolutely act upon our convictions—CUT OUT WASTE AND EXTRAVAGANCE—and save in earnest. Do it now!

Coming Of Peace In Europe Tames Peking Militarists

Fear Of Allied Intervention Increases Desire To End Civil Strife Soon

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, October 27.—There is undoubtedly a strong movement here in favor of a peaceful settlement with the south. In Tientsin especially, the Society for the Promotion of Peace, which is one of Mr. Liang Shih-yi's schemes, is gaining adherents every day, especially amongst those who have been thoroughly dissatisfied with the militarist regime. Practically, the Society consists of men who do not regard General Tuan Chi-jui as the salvation of the country, and who think that any change in the occupancy of the chief seat at Cabinet meetings must be a change for the better. It must not be supposed, however, that the chief inspiration of the peace movement is mere opposition to General Tuan. It is far more than that.

In the first place, the fact that the war in Europe may come to an end at any time, and that a League of Nations probably will be formed at once, is having great weight. So long as the war in Europe was regarded as a more or less perpetual state of affairs, there was no fear of interference by other Powers than Japan, and it was considered extremely likely that Japan, for reasons of her own, would not go too far. Whilst this blissful sun was shining, hay was being made, nests were being feathered, and the general motto was "After us, the deluge."

Chinese militarist statesmen have not the remotest conception of the real significance of world affairs. They think that arranging peace in Europe is a matter of a few minutes, and that the day after suspension of hostilities the League of Nations will become effective. They allow nothing for the months that the Peace Conference may take, for the months that demobilisation will take, and they think that if peace should be proclaimed in Europe tomorrow the attention of the world would be turned the next day to nations like China that do not know how to conduct their own affairs. Hence the sudden desire, thoroughly sincere, to arrive at a peaceful understanding before there is time for anybody from the west to handle a big stick.

That is one reason why peace is wanted. The second reason is that those who do not naturally favor peace are being brought to a pacificist point of view by the awkward fact that the sinews of war are becoming less powerful than they were. The change of government in Japan does not, in the eyes of these people, augur well for irregular loans at high interest on already mortgaged security. The fact that the American Legation has joined with the Legations representing the consortium in the protest against what is known here as the gold brick scheme, in other words against Mr. Tsao Ju-lin's currency scheme and loan, has somewhat startled the militarists as well. They really thought that America had abandoned China when the Washington authorities withdrew their backing from the participation of American capital in the consortium in 1918, and that American pre-occupation in the war would prevent any display of interest in China. The fact that the American Legation has joined the protestants has a double significance, first that Washington is taking a lively interest in China, and second that the other protestants seriously mean business or they would not have invited American participation.

So that, though they are slow to admit it, even the militarists are becoming quite pacificist in their views. The natural result is that the parasites of the militarists are beginning to drop off, and to find their way into pacificist camps. And, in the third place, the attitude taken by the people in general and especially by the commercial community is gradually becoming very obstinately anti-bellum. The depredations of bandits, the exactions of officials, and the other natural consequences of an uncurbed militarism that has no leisure to look after the ordinary affairs of life are creating amongst the people in general a very strong anti-official bias, which is in some places in danger of expressing itself in open disaffection. So the militarists and their friends are getting scared. They do not mind a semblance of fighting against the south, but they do not relish rebellion against themselves. Hence the spread of conciliation notions amongst the militarists themselves.

Finally, it must be admitted that the whole influence of the President has been strongly exercised for peace. The fact that he has indicated that he is not a peace-at-any-price man has strengthened his pacific activities, and it is beyond question that the common view and hope here is that peace is nearer now than ever it was.

BRITISH HAVE PROOF OF CRUELTY TO PRISONERS

Men Overworked, Beaten, Even Tortured By Germans, Says Sir George Cave

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, October 29.—In the House of Commons today during a discussion on the treatment of prisoners of war, Sir George Cave, in the course of a very strong indictment, said that it was proved that the Germans systematically underfed, overworked, robbed, cruelly mishandled, beat and even tortured our prisoners. The conditions of some camps were unspeakable and continue today. No words could be too strong to characterise the dastardly treatment of the men working in the salt mines, factories, etc.

Prisoners of war were still employed under fire despite two pledges that this would not be done. Cruelties, ill-treatment and insults were even prevalent in the hospitals and both doctors and nurses have been guilty of malpractices. Germany had a debt to pay and ought to be made to pay it.

With regard to reprisals he suggested that one means was through the great regard the Germans had for the position, dignity and comfort of their officers and wealthier civilians.

PEKING IS SKEPTICAL OF JAPANESE DENIAL

Unwilling To Accept Legation Repudiation Of Demands With Indemnity Remission

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, October 26.—For some time past there has been talk in private and reference in the press to Japan's alleged intention to forego permanently her share of the Boxer Indemnity, but this intention has always been referred to as a somewhat qualified intention. These have always been suggestions that Japan intended to forego the indemnity on terms that would give to Japan a great economic advantage in China. More recently it has been suggested that the string by which Japan intended to hold the indemnity, after foregoing it, was to be a political string, and this suggestion took the definite form a few days ago of a statement that Japan's conditions for foregoing the outstanding portion of the indemnity were that in framing her policy for the Peace Conference China should be guided by Japanese advisers and should practically place the international future of the country in the keeping of the Foreign Office at Tokio. When first this statement appeared in the press and was brought to the notice of the Japanese Legation all that the Legation had to say was that so far as the knowledge in its possession went, the Japanese Government had only decided in general principle on the return of the Boxer Indemnity, and no details as to conditions had been determined. Moreover, it was pointed out that the Japanese Government, like the other Allied Governments, had suspended the payment of the indemnity for a period of five years, so that the question of the conditions of the entire remission of the indemnity was one that could very well wait for settlement and need not be decided now.

The Japanese Legation evidently thought, however, that the reports that were being circulated should receive some more definite countering than this, and so, two days later, possibly after communication with Tokio, the following communication was officially issued by the Legation:

"It has lately been rported in the newspapers that, in connection with Japan's cancellation of her share of the Boxer Indemnity, she has made to China certain suggestions, which, if accepted, would amount to placing the position of China in the matter of peace to be concluded between the Powers entirely under Japan's control.

"The Japanese Legation regrets that such a report should ever have been circulated, and hereby declares that no such suggestion or ony other overtures which have any bearing upon the question of the Peace Conference have ever been made, not only in connection with the problem of Boxer Indemnity but also in any other connection whatever."

This notification helps to clear the air, and so far it is of interest; but it must be frankly admitted that not a great deal of weight is attached to it. The Legation here may be quite sincere, but there is a strong feeling that the Legation in Peking and the Foreign Office in Tokio have not been very sympathetic during the past year, and it is especially felt that the Legation here and the late Premier of Japan, Count Terauchi, were by no means in full sympathy with each other. For months past now, the Legation here has been engaged in denying knowledge of the loan activities of Mr. Nishihara, and apparently the denials have been made in good faith; but the whole of Mr. Nishihara's activities were so utterly vicious that onlookers have wondered why he was not deported. It is quite likely that the Legation would have been willing enough to secure his deportation; but apparently Mr. Nishihara had the direct support of Count Terauchi, and so his activities were unimpeded.

It is evident, however, that the Japanese authorities realise that with the end of the war looming nearer and nearer they had better walk warily. They are certainly paying much more attention to non-Japanese criticism than ever they did before. A Japanese official naively asked a prominent American here a few days ago whether the British Legation had raised its embargo on British press criticism of Japan."

troyed in the latest fighting and the conditions of the others necessitated the employment of a large part of the Austrian reserves.

An official communique reports:

The battle of the Piave is continuing victoriously for the Allies, who are in firm possession of the left bank from the slopes of Valdobbiadene to the Treviso-Odergo railway.

We have carried the heights of Valdobbiadene and the French have captured Monte-Pinnar. We hold the plain of Sernaglia. The 8th Army has carried the heights of Col Fosco and has entered Susegana while the 10th Army, advancing irresistibly, has pushed its advance guards to the left of the Monticano.

Numerous guns have been captured. Of the prisoners taken yesterday 4,000 have been counted and many more are coming in.

On the left bank of the Ornic we occupied Alano-di-Piave, taking several hundred prisoners.

"French Red Cross: This organisation is working on definite requisitions for the French troops, and when these are filled will begin to make Czech undergarments.

"Italian Women's Work: This association is working on definite requisitions for the Italian troops. From among the patterns sent by the Commandant that of a very good glove has been given to the Russian ladies and to the R.W.W.A. These gloves are being made in large quantities.

"Russian War Relief: As stated, the Russian ladies are working on gloves. They are also planning other warm garments.

"Padded garments: Although these, being unwashable, cannot take the place of undergarments there can be no two opinions as to their utility. Three different models have been made by Mrs. Darroch and Mrs. Hopkyn Rees—both of whom have had long experience of conditions in the north—and were to have gone to Vladivostok by the Simbirsk today. This will now be unnecessary as the Czech officers now in Shanghai have tried them on and though approving all, have selected the one they consider best adapted to conditions in the north. No time need therefore be lost before making up such garments.

"To make padded garments in quantities is obviously beyond the power of any local association.

"My committee is carefully considering the best steps to meet the need. In the meantime the R.W.W.A. will undertake to supervise the making and despatch of padded garments in so far as they are covered by donations sent to the Hon. Treas. R.W.W.A., H. M. Supreme Court, for this special purpose.

President Hsu Shih-chang will give a banquet to the Parliamentarians tomorrow evening and discuss informally the re-organisation of the Cabinet. He intends to have the Cabinet formed before the military conference, which might interfere with its organisation.

General Chang Hsun declares that he is willing to serve the country under General Chiang Kwei-ti, the Tartar-General of Jehol. Various messages of congratulations have been received by General Chang in Peking, including one from the notorious bandit of Shantung, Koo Teh-ling. The government is considering the appointment of General Chiang as Shantung Tuchun, and assigning the work of the suppression of bandits to Chang Hsun.

Mr. Kuo Chung-hsuen, former Minister of Agriculture and Commerce, arrived in Hongkong Tuesday. It is understood he is armed with $2,000,000 to approach the members of the defunct parliament and urge them to elect by post-sanction Mr. Hsu Shih-chang as President and to dissolve the defunct parliament after the enactment of the Constitution.

General Hsu Shu-cheng will soon proceed to Japan to represent China at the annual maneuvers.

A second batch of 20 Germans and Austrians have been sent to Fangshan for internment.

President Hsu Shih-chang has instructed Mr. Liang Shih-yi and Mr. Sun Pao-chi to raise a loan with the American financiers for the disbanding of unnecessary troops.

The Chung Foo news agency reports that it has been decided to ask Mr. Chien Nung-hsun to organise the formal Cabinet. Mr. Chien, however, consents to be Acting Premier only. Both Mr. Chow Shu-moh and General Chang Hua-chi will be included in the Cabinet.

To Repeat War Films

A repeat exhibition of the new British war films will be given at the Victoria Theater next Tuesday evening. These pictures created great enthusiasm among a large audience at the Olympic Theater at their first showing last Saturday and a rush of booking is anticipated for the second performance. Very few in China have seen how a smoke screen is produced or have any idea of what a forty-five-mile-an-hour motor boat looks like when racing over the water. Something of this and of other items of like interest may be learned at this exhibition.

SAYS SIBERIA HAS NO ROOM FOR CLASS WAR

Siberian Army Foundation Of New And Powerful Russia —Finishing Training

GEN. IVANOFF INTERVIEWED

America Appropriates $5,000,000 For Purchase Of Articles Of First Necessity

By Frank H. King
(From The Japan Advertiser)

Vladivostok, October 23.—General Ivanoff, War Minister, has arrived from Omsk to confer with the Allies in an attempt to systematise the mobilisation of the Russians here for the new army and also to bring about unification of command and harmony among the military leaders in Eastern Siberia. Emilonoff, Kalmikoff, Bytenko and others are now acting independently. When interviewed, General Ivanoff said:

"A strong army under the All-Russian Government is finishing its training at Omsk, but its urgent need is for arms and equipment, the money for which must come from the Allies. At present Russia is Siberia and Siberia is Russia, therefore, the Siberian army is the foundation of a new and powerful Russia. There is no room in Siberia for class war, hence the downfall of the Bolsheviki."

By means of the Ufa Government, removed to Omsk, the All-Russian authority is being exerted through the cabinet and ministers. General Ivanoff says all questions of different authority are now ended. Organisation of the new army is based upon principles of iron discipline and unity of command. The officers are strictly responsible to the government, and the army is strictly non-political.

Arriving at Vladivostok General Ivanoff received word from Foreign Minister Graves, now in Japan, advising of his departure from Tokio Friday night and asking for a conference upon his arrival at Vladivostok to consider important negotiations.

Feta Telegraph

Vladivostok, October 24.—War Minister Ivanoff and Mr. Raynoff have arrived and were met by the military authorities and a guard of honor. Ivanoff in a speech said that Bolshevism in Siberia was not so strong that it could not be energetically swept out.

The formation of an all Russian Government has superseded all others.

Part of the Japanese Economic Mission have arrived; also members of the Y.M.C.A. who will co-operate with the Americans.

In view of the German-Bolshevik successes in the Volga region agitation among the lower classes is increasing.

In Habarovsk in the presence of General Otani a ceremony in honor of the Japanese killed was held.

America Sends Necessaries

Kokusai Direct

Vladivostok, October 23.—Persistent rumors are current regarding the overthrow of the Omsk Government and the arrest of the Ufa Directoire. These reports were published in the local press today and say that that is an attempted coup with the object of establishing a Military Dictatorship preliminary to setting up a monarchy. The news from the west is very scanty of late, but the reports are discredited in authoritative circles here.

The Economic Commissioner of the United States announced here today that America has made an appropriation of five million dollars for the immediate purchase of articles of first necessary for Siberia, and they have already allotted 20,000 tons for shipment in November and December.

The Government authorities have sanctioned the temporary use of the Soviet script in Habarovsk and Amur districts.

N. B. Dyer Pleads Guilty To Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses

A sentence of teh weeks' imprisonment with hard labor was imposed upon N. B. Dyer by Magistrate F. Alan Robinson in the British Police Court yesterday for obtaining money under false pretenses. The accused was charged on three counts with securing contributions for the Eastern Boys' Own Club, an organisation which is non-existent.

Mr. K. E. Newman, Police Legal Advisor, who prosecuted, asked for a severe sentence. He stated that the book in which the accused entered subscrfptions contained 92 entries, of which 21 were genuine and amounted to $68. The Magistrate agreed that the offense was a serious one.

The three charges preferred against the defendant were: obtaining $2 from Mr. J. C. Chinai on October 9; $3 from Mr. Kitafuku on October 11, and $10 from the Mitsui Bishi Kaisha on October 23. Dyer pleaded guilty.

SHANTUNG PREFERS BANDITS TO SOLDIERS

Troops Sent To Clear Out Brigands Prove Even Greater Plunderers

China Press Correspondence

Taianfu, Shantung, China, October 28.—"For Heaven's sake withdraw the soldiers and leave us to the tender mercies of the brigands" is the cry that is going up to the government from this city and the surrounding country. It was supposed that relief had come when several hundred soldiers arrived in this vicinity but it was not long until there was a different report.

The ordinary method followed by the soldiers is to go in the direction of the brigands but keep at a safe distance so that neither side is in danger; then when the soldiers turn about to come back to the city they must bring some evidence that they have done good service and so they turn in on the defenseless farmers and take their animals and other property and then report to their officers that the things have been recovered from the brigands. No effort is made to return the stock, etc., to the owners but an auction sale is held and the returns divided as so much loot for the soldiers.

There is also a constant fear lest these soldiers attack the shops in this city and suburbs so that especial care has been taken in locking gates and doors since the soldiers have been quartered here. I was told last night that more than fifty appeals had been sent to the provincial authorities asking that the troops be withdrawn.

This country has also been visited by the influenza that has reached other parts of China and the number of deaths is appalling and seems much greater than the severity of the disease would require. Where foreign medicine has been used the great majority of cases have had a good and prompt recovery. Added to brigands and sickness this country is suffering from a very severe drought which is making it very difficult to harvest the crops and plant the wheat.

IMPARTIAL AND PROGRESSIVE

SHANGHAI, NOVEMBER 1, 1918

The Disintegration Of Austria-Hungary

THE decisive military defeat of Austria-Hungary may be said to have dated from that fateful week last spring when the Austrian offensive on the Piave was instantly converted into a disaster. Her political disintegration may be said to have commenced earlier. Day by day, the position of Austria-Hungary is growing from bad to worse. Her situation may best be revealed by outlining in brief detail the latest messages received yesterday, and this sorry plight of Austria-Hungary must be interpreted as the inevitable prelude to the approaching downfall of German military power, which can no longer be bolstered up by Austrian assistance.

To take the military position first, we have just received the important news that the combined British and Italian armies are attacking on a front of twenty-five miles and are opposed by forty-five Austrian divisions, comprising 600,000 troops. Six divisions of Austrian troops have been half destroyed in the latest fighting and the condition of the others necessitated the employment of a large part of the Austrian reserves. The Austrian troops at present employed may thus be said to represent the last blow to be struck by an expiring military power. It is in the nature of a spent force. The Allies have crossed the Piave on the whole front from the Treviso-Orderzo Railway to Valdobbiadene. The Italian cavalry is pursuing the fleeing Austrians and a toll of 25,000 prisoners and 200 guns has been taken by the victorious Allies. All the Allied objectives have been gained.

The situation is one that may well dismay Germany.

Turning to the political situation in Austria-Hungary, the outlook is not one whit less gloomy for the Dual Monarchy. Late despatches from Berne announce that very serious trouble occurred in Budapest on Sunday evening and all day on Monday. Some conception of Austria's desperate position may be obtained from the fact that a mob broke through several cordons of troops and was subjected to rifle and machine-gun fire and the bayonet. Many persons were killed and wounded, and the demonstrators were finally dispersed by the police. These things are forerunners of revolution. It is all very well for the Austro-Hungarian authorities to forbid, as they have done, all demonstrations and meetings, but history has shown that when safe outlets for the venting of pent-up suffering and misery are closed, a whole nation sees red and we then have what is known as a revolution.

It is this gnawing consciousness of the coming storm that has undoubtedly persuaded Emperor Karl's Government to cut adrift from Germany and decide to make peace without the Hohenzollerns. The Kaiser once made the sardonic boast that Krupp guns were good persuaders in the realm of international diplomacy, but he is fated to discover that Allied might is an equally good persuader, so much so that Austria has been reduced to the abject necessity of actually begging for peace at any price, the same being more or less true of Germany also. Such is the only interpretation of the Note which Count Andrassy has sent to Mr. Lansing begging President Wilson to support it and to use his good offices to persuade the Allies to grant an immediate armistice with a view to the conclusion of a separate peace between the Allies and Austria-Hungary independent of Germany.

Count Andrassy declares that measures have been taken, in conformity with the principles of President Wilson, by which the peoples of Austria-Hungary can decide their future organisation and regulate it at their own free will." He particularly lays stress upon the desire for peace animating the Emperor Karl and all the peoples of Austria-Hungary, which may well be true in view of the certain consciousness on the part of the Austrian Emperor that his dynasty is at stake. Austria, in effect, has signified her readiness to assent to the terms dictated to her by the Allies.

If, as the result of the dictation of the Allies' terms, the Hohenzollern and Hapsburg dynasties are swept into the garbage heap, it will be but an infinitesimal portion of the reparation due to Belgium, Servia, Rumania and the other martyred nations. Her full debt to crucified humanity Germany can never pay.

Japan And The Next War. Mr. Ozaki's Views

Says the Japan Chronicle: We have already quoted some Japanese opinion regarding the race war which appears to be confidently expected in spite of the League of Nations and Western efforts to prevent another tremendous conflict of nations. The latest voice to be heard on this subject is that of Mr. Y. Ozaki, ex-Minister of Justice and a leading member of the Kenseikai. In the course of an interview (translated by the Japan Gazette from the Asahi) Mr. Ozaki is said to have remarked that it is scarcely necessary to point out that President Wilson's fourteen peace terms proposed in January should be made the fundamental basis for the restoration of peace. Speaking broadly, the present war will be brought to a close on condition that Germany and her Allies are deprived of all means enabling them to disturb the world's peace again. After peace is declared the world will not see another war for at least half a century, the sacrifices in men and finance proving too heavy a burden.

Race Prejudice Of Over-Population

It is probable the next war will be the outcome of race prejudice or because of over-population. It is true the colored race is inferior to the white, but with the steady development in civilisation on the part of the colored race the latter will demand the same treatment as the white race, and the result will be armed collision. In a country like Japan, where the population is increasing each year with alarming rapidity, it is but natural that the surplus population should try to secure an outlet, even by resorting to arms. From Japan's standpoint, says Mr. Ozaki, the racial and population questions are more important than President Wilson's fourteen cardinal points of surrender, inasmuch as the questions concern the future of some nine hundred million souls in Asia. In the forthcoming Peace Conference, Japan, on behalf of all the Asiatic races, should introduce the racial and population questions for consideration, and, if possible, secure a solution.

America And Japan

Turning to relations between the United States and Japan, Mr. Ozaki said no one can deny that until the outbreak of the present war neither the United States nor Japan trusted each other, and even at present there still remain unsettled certain problems which may bring about a future war between the two countries. War between the two peoples may be avoided by a frank exchange of views, and Mr. Ozaki warns the Japanese not to content themselves by trusting to diplomatic official only for the maintenance of peace between America and Japan. The exchange of diplomatic communiques will only deepen doubts and suspicions on either side. It appears the Japanese are anxious permanently to occupy the South Sea Islands, taken from Germany in connection with the war, but Mr. Ozaki ventures the opinion that to ask the United States to dismantle her forts in the Philippines and Hawaii would be more important for Japan than the taking-over of the Caroline Group. So long as America and Japan continue preparing for future war, as in the past, the two countries may be said to be maintaining an armed peace. Nothing can be more dangerous than this.

Mr. Ozaki further warns the Japanese not to adopt the German system of state organisation, which, in the present war, has proved to be a mere machine for destroying civilisation and trampling under foot the rights of nations and peoples. In the European field the Germans have committed barbarous and inhuman actions because they were under the impression that any action done in the name of patriotism was justified. Such a mistaken notion must be speedily dispelled.

Let Not War Sacrifices Be Made In Vain, Says Shibusawa

Baron Shibusawa, in an interview with the Yomiuri, dwells on the peace question at some length from which the Japan Advertiser makes the following translation:

"It is only natural that the belligerents as well as neutrals should desire the cessation of hostilities as speedily as possible for the sake of humanity. But since practically the whole world has made such great sacrifices for the war it would not be advisable to conclude peace before the object for which the Allies embarked on the war has been fully accomplished. To push the war to the ultimate objective is the only way to save the world from the horrors of future wars by establishing a permanent peace of the world on solid foundations. In this respect President Wilson's speech, delivered September 27, is very clear and to the point. The principles set forth by Mr. Wilson are that no countries in the world would be allowed to act for the attainment of their selfish ends so that absolute guarantees might be given for the peace and happiness of mankind. If this ideal is realised it may be said that the enormous sacrifices for the war have not been made in vain.

"There is no doubt that, viewed in the light of what has happened, Germany made use of the Peace Congress at The Hague as a cloak under which to conceal her wicked designs. When the day of trial came Germany tore the peace convention to pieces and it failed to serve the purpose for which it was designed. This must be attributed to the indefinite nature of the convention. If the representatives of all the civilised countries of the world deliberated on the question of peace with sincerity and earnestness there is no doubt that a permanent peace of the world will be built upon a secure basis and it will prove a great boon to humanity. Two frequent causes of war are racial pressure and trade disputes. As these factors are contrary to the principles of humanity and justice, however, misunderstandings may be avoided if the cause so earnestly championed by President Wilson is put into practice."

Non-Favoritism Construed As Anti-Japanism

The following editorial from The Japan Chronicle is peculiarly apropos coming in the wake of the Shanghai Municipal Council's compilation of its report relative to the Hongkew disturbances of last July. In both there is noticeable the petulant demand of Japanese for discriminatory treatment:

Measures introduced in foreign countries affecting the rights of strangers are always very keenly watched by Japanese for signs of anti-Japanism. It is useless for the country concerned to protest that it does not mean Japan in particular. If there happen to be more Japanese affected than other nationals, it is insisted that the objectionable action must have been inspired by specific anti-Japanese prejudice, and an argument so powerful diplomatically seldom fails to make an impression. The latest example of this is the reception given to a report that the Chinese Government has ordered the closing of foreign shops that may have been opened in towns where foreign trade is not permitted by the Treaties, and the rendering of an account of capital invested, amount and character of business done, and nationality of the proprietors in the case of foreign businesses existing in towns open to foreign trade. This order is criticised as directly hostile to Japan, but so far as it is so the Japanese have only themselves to thank for it. When Japan was preferring her famous demands, it was specifically mentioned that Japanese should have rights of residence in Manchuria and Mongolia. Indeed, Japan could not demand the granting or denial of rights to any nationals except her own, but it was not until the question was raised whether the proposed arrangements did not infringe the principle of equal opportunity that Japan explained that the rights sought for Japanese would, of course, apply to all nations. It was as well to have this specifically declared.

That China should make an attempt to limit the settlement of foreigners within her borders is not surprising. She would probably be well advised to throw off the old exclusiveness altogether, though she cannot be expected to do this while extra-territoriality is in force. There are many objections, from the Chinese point of view, to the promiscuous settlement of Japanese in places where they have no treaty rights. Not the least of them is that a Japanese who thus takes up his abode by no means relinquishes his claim to extra-territorial rights, and it is an exceedingly vexatious matter for the Chinese authorities to get him brought before a Japanese Consul, and still more so for a Chinese plaintiff to sue. Japanese critics on occasion are the first to deplore the fact that the character of many small Japanese adventurers in China is of the worst description. Yet a Foreign Office authority on one occasion, when discussing Chinese rights over Japanese who fought with insurrectionists and fled when the insurrectionists were defeated, said that, of course, such Japanese had not lost their rights as neutrals! When the attitude of the Japanese authorities has been one so little considerate of Chinese susceptibilities and even of Chinese rights, it is hardly to be wondered at that the natural disinclination of the Chinese to allow treaty stipulations to become a dead letter is doubled. It is only the fact that the Japanese have practically a monopoly in this lawless invasion that makes the attempt to put an end to it "anti-Japanese."

Sometimes established fact has to take precedence of the letter of the law. It has been stated, as a reason for protesting against the new Chinese regulations that, in the particular case of Shantung, the Japanese have roamed all over the province and settled there in such numbers that they have created a vested interest. But here again their activities have not been such as to commend themselves to the Chinese authorities. They openly flouted the Chinese law in going round collecting "cash," and were encouraged in this infraction by the facility with which they could export it from Tsingtao. Though having no rights under any treaty to make these money-gathering tours, they were protected so effectively by the Japanese authorities that the Chinese dared not interfere by physical force. Besides, these so-called vested interests are hardly of such long standing that they deserve any respect, having in the great bulk of cases only come into existence since the Japanese evicted the Germans from Tsingtao. The other day General Hongo spoke in eulogistic terms of the work done by the Japanese in Tsingtao. From the Chinese point of view there were advantages in an occupancy which did not entail the over-running of the province with men above the law but not above breaking it.

With regard to the other requirement that even those foreigners who live in towns open for foreign residence must render an account of the character of their business and the amount of capital invested in it, this might seem on the face of it inquisitorial and it might be expected that, whereas the large business houses, European, American, or Japanese, would resent it, it could make very little difference to the very small men who comprise the greater part of the Japanese residents. Japanese investments in China are still vastly smaller than those of other foreigners, and at first sight it seems very fanciful to describe the new rule as anti-Japanese. There is, however, one view of the facts that brings it into special relationship to Japan, and it is only necessary to consider what is the Chinese Government's object in requiring this information for an understanding on this point to be reached. It will be remembered that when General Chang Hsun endeavored to keep the peace in Nanking three Japanese variously described as hawkers and merchants got killed in the disturbance, and some Japanese shops were damaged or plundered. The bill for compensation cost the Chinese Government some Y.900,000. This is typical of all the cases where Japanese suffer damage in China, and it is quite obvious that if all foreign businesses were properly registered such claims would necessarily be very much smaller. This is why the new Chinese regulation is anti-Japanese—or one of the reasons, at least. The last two Governments in Japan have dealt very harshly with China, and hopes have been expressed that the Hara Ministry will act in such a way as to earn the trust of China instead of the mute hostility. It is not encouraging, therefore, when one of the first acts of the new Chinese President is denounced as anti-Japanese. It is anti-Japanese only to the degree that it is discreditable to Japan that it should be so. It seems to have become an ingrained habit with many Japanese that they should regard Chinese rights as being subservient to Japanese interests, and they seem entirely unable to put themselves into the position of the Chinese in considering any question. Even the claims of other foreigners in China to their treaty rights become "anti-Japanese" as soon as they become inconvenient to any Japanese interest. It is not a healthy attitude, and it warps the whole sense of justice. In the end, if not checked, it must necessarily do the greatest harm to Japan. It is to be hoped, therefore, that the new Government will make a good beginning by a generous recognition of China's claim to her treaty rights and a sympathetic consideration of her measures for self-protection.

U-Boat Commander Tells Of Mutinies Among Crews

By Commander Franz Henrick Igennohlc

(One of the German U-Boat officers who mutinied and succeeded in reaching Holland).

During the early days of the submarine campaign it was fashionable to join the service and the high pay tempted all classes of seamen and marines. But as time passed and hundreds of our U-boats never returned to their bases and the British Government refused to make public the manner in which these boats were destroyed, this service grew unpopular, until not only men refused to volunteer, but they even showed their horror of the under-sea service by loudly grumbling.

Then came the Jutland battle, in which our naval force received such terrible punishment that even now we have not yet recovered from the losses.

Then came the Americans. I have preserved seven of the circulars with which our pan-Germans flooded our naval bases on American's entrance into the war. At the time we believed these, but now they read like wild tales old seamen are in the habit of telling to the country people who have never seen the sea. But we officers have already learned differently from a few fortunate submarine commanders who succeeded in saving their lives when attacked by the war vessels of this power, who, our higher command has told us, could not fight and were not willing to fight.

Less Volunteers

More and more each day it became a very difficult problem to man our new submarines and to recruit men to relieve those who returned to our bases for rest. I myself returned from undersea cruises extending through nine weeks at a time without being able to obtain leave or being able to replace my crew with fresh men.

The trouble started when it was known that eight U-boats were being prepared to cruise to the American waters. For nearly a whole month our naval bases were bombarded with circulars telling us about the great adventures of many of our U-boats in the Atlantic Ocean, where we had captured or sunk numberless American ships. But no one took these boastings seriously.

Then one day notices were posted for volunteers from the naval crews to join a U-boat expedition to the Atlantic. Not one to my knowledge, offered himself for the cruise. It was plain to us that it was a journey from which no one would be likely to return. It was then that the Admiralty decided to apportion a certain number from each naval base for the new U-boat venture. The base commanders, knowing the temper of their men, advised the high command to resort to other means to induce enough men for the venture.

Conscription

Then suddenly came the order that each base must furnish a certain number of seamen who had served in the under-sea service at any time or trained for it for the venture. These men were arbitrarily collected and attempts were made to forward them to the Williamshaven base.

When at Kiel about 120 men were ordered to prepare for shipment to Williamshaven there was trouble.

The men chosen refused to embark on the destroyer and after a bloody encounter lasting nearly an hour the rebellious crew were marched back to the shore and one out of every seven of the crew was shot on the Williamshaven parade grounds before a huge crowd of sailors who are permanently stationed at the barracks. This made things still worse as the men at the depots were always under suspicion.

From that day every attempt to discipline those who had offended the barracks rules was accompanied with bloody encounters. Officers in charge of the barracks never dared to go out at night alone, as during the few weeks following the wholesale executions of the rebellious crews several naval officers were set upon by the crew and beaten, and two were killed by stabbing in the dark. This was about three months ago.

During these days I was reprimanded no less than nine times for being lenient with the men under my command at Kiel. Candidly, my leniency was not intentional but obligatory. Like other officers of my rank I lived in daily fear of my life. The higher command would not learn the temper of the men and would not believe the recommendations of the subordinate officers like myself.

A Bunch Of Women

One day Captain Lohlein told a troop of us officers that if it was in his power he would execute the officers of every rebellious crew and styled us a whole lot of fraus. One of the officers thereupon stopped up and told him that he was at liberty to take charge of his men for a few days and give us an example of how he would maintain discipline among the crew. The officer who thus offended Captain Lohlein was next day given a commission to return to sea for punishment. Lieutenant Self told me when he bid me good-bye that it was his intention never to return to the Fatherland. He was a life-long and loyal friend, and in turn I confided to him that in case I should be given such an opportunity I myself would never return to the Fatherland.

Incidentally, that is where our higher command is at a loss; they do not know when the U-boats start from their bases and fail to return after three months whether the vessel is destroyed by the enemy, has met with an accident, surrendered or deserted voluntarily. Our higher command would give everything to know the exact fate of every "unreturning" U-boat.

After this came one of the most serious defections in the naval ranks at the Kiel Canal base. Captain Voss was a fatherly man, who had been in command of the U-boat flotilla attached to our North Sea bases. Almost continuously he had been in the service since the war never taking leave more than three days at a time. He was a great trainer of men and commanded the respect of those under him. It was during one of his short leaves that he received a letter from his wife at Kiel and rushed to that base to see her. I was at the time stationed there on training duty.

I knew Captain Voss for many years and loved him as my own elder brother. On arriving at Kiel he rushed to me with the letter from his wife asking him to meet her in the city. He told me to read the letter. It was tragic news. His only son, a young officer in the army stationed somewhere in Belgium, was executed by the authorities "for grave insubordination vitally detrimental to the safety of the Empire."

Captain Voss swore vengeance against those guilty of taking his son's life. He told me that he came to me first as he did not dare to see his wife while in such a state of mind. I could not advise him and begged him to withdraw his request for me to accompany him to his wife. I knew that the mother would be still more unconsolable than the father himself.

He was pacing the floor back and forth when another fellow officer entered the room and naturally learned of the misfortune of Captain Voss. Captain Hansen attempted to pacify Captain Voss by telling him that he must be brave and that he must consider that where the safety of the Fatherland is involved he must submit to the decision of those who must have weighed this matter gravely.

Captain Hansen was not a brute, but was a little tactless. He at once received a good thrashing from the angry and wronged father, and left the room angrier than Captain Voss.

Then Captain Voss started on a fluent condemnation of the higher command, not even sparing the Kaiser, I begged him to be more prudent in his speech. But he would not listen. He finally broke down and cried like a child, swearing to do things that even the talk of it would cause his immediate execution.

Murder Committed

At this point Captain Hansen returned with two officers and demanded an apology from his thrasher. Thereupon instantly Captain Voss drew his revolver and shot Captain Hansen dead. I myself was compelled to put him under arrest, and his imprudent retorts before the board of inquiry convicted him. He was shot.

But Captain Voss had another brother in the service, and it is to him that I feel myself indebted for having reached this land in safety. The younger Voss was more prudent and did things without first threatening that he would commit them. He was the one who organized the venture to desert, although he lost his life in the attempt. Had the attempt been successful a more serious mutiny would have ensued, but it failed, and for that reason only a handful of us saved our lives.

Wheezes

The Bird Man's Day

The bird man gay ascends each day to hand Dame Chance a trouncing; with carol gay he wends his way from cloud to cloud a-bouncing; it must be great to aviate mid storm-clouds gayly whisking, to loop-the-loop with joyous whoop, one's epidermis risking; without a care he skims the air and flitteth like a swallow; he climbs on high toward the sky, 'mid fleecy clouds to wallow; he madly skips and throws back-flips amid the gusty breezes, in heat or cold the bird man bold each chance for glory seizes.
What though he breaks his neck or takes a fall from heights appalling?
He risks his bun to strafe the Hun nor fears his motor stalling. His crankshaft breaks a dive he takes; it causes him to worry; he volplanes down without a frown nor gets into a flurry; by spiral dives he often tries to fool some vexing Herman; his cuticle of grit is full, he smiteth oft the German. Machine-gun fire and dangers dire he meets and never shivers; he gayly laughs and photographs a few more forts and rivers.
He skimmeth through the ether blue nor heedeth countless dangers; he hath no qualm, his nerve is calm, for fear and he are strangers. No care is his, he is a whiz, he flirteth with disaster; with quiet air he risks his hair to prove he's Fritz's master. In heat or cold the bird man bold each chance for glory seizes, he madly skips and throws back-flips amid the gusty breezes!

THE PATRIOT DINES

Is likewise a patriot.

Alack! I shall soon be thinner.
But I am a patriot;
I'll not find fault with my dinner.

I am a patriot,
Thinking high thoughts like Plato.
We must be thrifty—What!
As I am a patriot.

Carrots and boiled potato!
But I am a patriot,
Thinking high thoughts like Plato.
